

Cotton: World Markets and Trade

China State Reserve Auctions Off to Strong Start

Disposition of State Reserve Stocks as of June 7

The long-anticipated sales from China’s State Reserve began on May 3rd. During the first month of sales demand has been strong with over 97 percent of the cotton being offered finding buyers. As of June 7th, 3.2 million bales (697,000 MT) had been sold. Foreign cotton, primarily U.S. and Australian, initially represented a majority of the cotton being offered, but the amount of foreign cotton has steadily been reduced and in the first week of June no foreign cotton was offered. Total sales of foreign cotton have nearly reached 300,000 MT, the reported limit for sales this auction cycle.

Sales are made through a daily auction where a minimum price is set for each lot offered for sale. A floor price is set each week based on the average of the previous week’s internal market price and the A-Index. The minimum price of each lot is the floor price adjusted based on quality. All of the cotton being sold has been regraded and weighed. China announced that sales from the State Reserve would continue until the end of August, and that up to 2 million MT (9.2 million bales) could be sold. If sales were to continue at the same pace as observed so far, the entire 2 million MT could be sold by the time auctions end in August.

However, even these large sales would represent less than one fifth of the total amount believed to be held in the State Reserve (11 to 11.5 million MT). Provided that any new reserve purchases are paired with additional sales for rotation, and assuming future auctions are similarly successful, the observed rate of reserve auctions will take at least 3 to 4 years to return stock levels to more typical historical levels. This represents a slightly faster pace of stock reductions than was anticipated in the FAS circular in June 2015, mainly due to larger-than-expected declines in domestic production. This month’s estimates reflect reductions of 1.3 million and 1.0 million bales, respectively, in China’s 2015 and 2016 cotton production.

Overview

For 2016/17, world production and beginning stocks are forecast down, due to lower production in China in both 2015 and 2016. Consumption is forecast down slightly, led by a decline in India. Trade is raised slightly, largely on higher trade in India and Turkey. U.S. beginning stocks are raised slightly. The U.S. season-average farm price forecast is unchanged at 57 cents/pound.

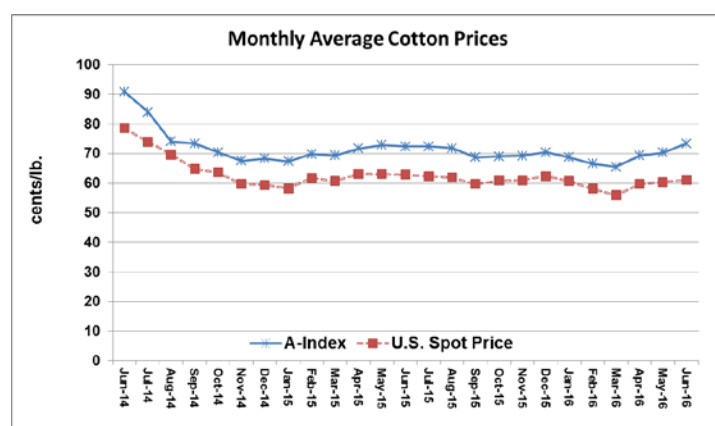

For 2015/16, world production is lowered, largely due to a smaller crop estimate for China, resulting in lower ending stocks. Global trade is raised slightly. U.S. exports are unchanged at 9 million, while U.S. consumption is lowered marginally. The U.S. season-average farm price is unchanged at 58 cents/pound.

Prices

The A-Index and U.S. spot prices continued to show recovery as remaining old crop supplies tighten.
